DEMOCRATS GATHER TO DISCUSS FUTURE POLICIES OF PARTY

Prohibition Question
Charges Meeting
With Tension

WASHINGTON, March 5.—In an atmosphere surcharged with tension and suspicion, the Democratic national committee assembled here today in its first meeting since the memorable campaign of 1928. It met in response to the call of Chairman John J. Raskob, for the announced purpose of "discussing future policies and finances."

Among those "future policies" is the controversial issue of prohibition. If Chairman Raskob has his way the national committee will adopt a resolution recommending that the national convention of 1932 incorporate in its platform a plank opposing Volsteadism. In this he has the support of Ex-Gov. A. Smith, the party's 1928 candidate for the presidency.

It was widely reported that Chairman Raskob had the votes in the committee to endorse such a resolution. But if the resolution is adopted, it will be over the vehement protest of the southern members, who represent dry constituencies and who are bitterly opposed to the national committee engaging in any discussion of or commitment to national policies. These are matters, the southern dry say, that should be left to the determination of the national convention. They object to their even being discussed in a meeting of the national committee which admittedly has no authority to commit the party.

The national committee can go no further than "recommending" a set of resolutions to the national convention.

"If the time ever comes," said Smith, "that the Democratic party is afraid to discuss anything that affects the health, welfare and business of every citizen of the country, then the party has ceased to be Democratic and becomes Republican."

Smith's statement was uttered in a general sense, and not in specific application to prohibition or the meeting of the national committee. Yet the application was unmistakable.

He believes that prohibition is bound to be a dominant issue in 1932, perhaps not the paramount issue, but certainly important. He believes implicitly that "a great majority" of the American people are opposed to prohibition in its present form.

Presidential politics and presidential preferences inevitably enter into the meeting of the national committee.

The action of the New York state committee in adopting a resolution instructing the New York committee, Norman E. Black, to oppose discussion of prohibition at today's session, intensifies reports that all is not sweetness and harmony between Governor Smith and Governor Roosevelt. It is an open secret that Roosevelt's friends suspect Raskob of unfriendly designs against Roosevelt's presidential aspirations.

The Roosevelt people accuse Raskob of covertly promoting the candidacy of Owen D. Young.

Prohibition is not the only sore spot in the Democratic set-up. There is also the question of finances. The party is indebted to Chairman Raskob personally to the extent of some $225,000 in personal loans, in addition to $400,000 more that it owes to banks on Raskob's endorsement, and some means must be found for discharging this indebtedness.

James H. Cox was on the scene today, and, while declining to discuss the national committee meeting, he did venture the opinion that the Democratic party should take a vigorous stand in 1932 against prohibition.

THREE DEAD AS FIRE RAZES BOX CAR HOME

CICERO, Ill., March 5.—Three persons were burned to death and another narrowly escaped the same fate today when fire swept a box car home in the colony of railroad track laborers here.

Three fire companies were called out to keep the flames from spreading to about forty other box cars being used as dwellings.

Only one inhabitant of the car escaped. She is Mrs. Trinidad Espinosa, who dived through a window. The dead are Anselmo Espinosa, 46, his daughter, Angella, 16, and Jesus Barnosora, 30, a boarder at the little home.

PROPOSED TOBACCO TAX WOULD PROVIDE NEW WELFARE PLANT

Taft Suggestion Is Possible Solution To Problem

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—In a proposed state excise tax on tobacco the special legislative taxation committee today saw the long-sought answer to the problem of finding money for the modernizing of state welfare institutions.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R) of Cincinnati, chairman, was convinced that the tobacco-users of Ohio can be required to furnish millions of dollars for construction of new buildings and fireproofing and enlarging of present structures.

The plan already has been recommended to Governor George White as a substitute for the governor's proposal to build and enlarge state welfare institutions through the use of a $25,000,000 bond issue.

Though he has not expressed himself as being either in favor or in opposition, the governor was reported to be "highly interested" in Senator Taft's proposal to carry out the improvements which he promised in his gubernatorial campaign.

The excise tax on tobacco now in the hands of the special committee provides a one-cent levy on every ten cigarettes, a 10 per cent charge of the maximum retail price of all cigars and chewing tobacco, and a small levy on snuff.

The proposed excise, levying a state charge against tobacco for the first time, would furnish the state from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 a year.

After spending six or eight millions for state school aid, about four millions would remain which might be expended for welfare improvements, Senator Taft said.

In five years the cigarette and cigar smokers of the state can erect a complete new welfare institution system for Ohio, he estimated.

Taft objects to the governor's bond issue proposal, claiming it is inconsistent.

"We propose to relieve the owners of real estate in our new tax bill, yet in the governor's proposal he would issue bonds at the expense of real estate owners, taking away any saving that we might effect," he declared.

Meanwhile, the state legislature today awaited details of the governor's welfare improvement program, which is to be presented as soon as Welfare Director John McSweeney, now ill at his home in Wooster, has had time to complete drafting it.

STORM SWEEPS SMALL ISLAND

Mauritius Suffers In Severe Cyclone

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 5.—The most devastating cyclone in twenty years has raged on Mauritius Island in the Indian Ocean since 10 p. m. yesterday, according to messages received from Port Louis, the capital, today.

The storm has caused enormous property damage. The cyclone drove the British steamers Clangham and Sandgate ashore, and devastated all crops on the island. Late messages stated that the storm in the harbor of Port Louis was growing even more menacing.

Mauritius Island, frequently called the Isle of France, is of British possession. It is located 500 miles east of Madagascar, and has an area of 720 square miles. At least two-thirds of its 390,000 population is Hindu. Port Louis, the capital and chief seaport, has a population of 50,000.

Its chief product is sugar.

THAW LOSES CASE; PLANNING APPEAL

NEW YORK, March 5.—Attorneys for Harry K. Thaw said today they would appeal the verdict yesterday by Marcia Estardus. She charged that the millionaire beat her with a hairbrush and was awarded $16,000 damages. It was the third trial of her suit, the first ending in disagreement and the second awarding her $75,000, later reduced to $25,000.

"It is not so much the money as it is the vindication," Miss Estardus, a night club hostess, said when the verdict was announced. Thaw was not in court when the jury reported to Supreme Court Justice Walsh.

INDIA CAMPAIGN TO END IMMEDIATELY; ABANDON SALT TAX

Gandhi Victorious In Provisions Of New Peace Agreement

BOMBAY, March 5.—Mahatma Gandhi's campaign of civil disobedience against British rule, launched more than a year ago, will be abandoned immediately and all nationalist prisoners except those jailed for violence will be liberated, it was revealed today with publication of the agreement reached between the nationalist leader and Viceroy Lord Irwin.

Terms of the agreement follow closely the forecasts made by International News Service last Monday. Gandhi promises to discontinue boycott of British goods as a political weapon, and unimolested sale and purchase of British commodities will be restored.

The agreement gives Gandhi a signal victory in his campaign against the British salt tax, one of the principal causes of his opposition to continued British rule. Residents of the salt areas of India, particularly the poor, will be permitted to collect and manufacture salt from sea water for domestic consumption or sale within their own villages.

Hitherto, the British government has exercised a complete monopoly on salt collection, manufacture and sale, reaping a lucrative revenue thereby. Violation of this British monopoly was a prison offense, and it was upon this technical charge that Gandhi himself served an eight months' sentence in the Yeravda jail near Poona.

Picketing of liquor shops and foreign commercial establishments by Gandhi's men will be permitted if it is a "non-aggressive character," the agreement sets forth.

It is understood Gandhi will continue his boycott against foreign manufactured cloth, prevailing upon all Indian cloth dealers to refuse to sell the foreign product, dispatching their present stocks for sale abroad.

Terms of the agreement became operative simultaneously with its publication. The accord, which is hailed as ending the internal strife which has beset India for months, was reached at lengthy "man to man" conferences between Gandhi and Lord Irwin, who is soon to relinquish his post as viceroy.

DAUGHERTY IS CONVICTED

FACES LONG PRISON TERM, HEAVY FINE; TO SEEK NEW TRAIL

Banker Hears Jury Stoically; Blamed In Bank Failure

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., March 5.—Facing a prison sentence of from one to thirty years and a fine of $10,000 on each of five counts of an indictment charging fraud in connection with the collapse of the Ohio State Bank, Mal S. Daugherty, brother of the former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, today was at liberty under $40,000 bond pending a hearing for a new trial.

The former president of the defunct institution, who stepped into the public limelight in 1924 during the investigation of the famous Teapot Dome oil lease scandal, was convicted late yesterday by a jury composed of fellow Payette County men who had for more than

WINS SECOND TIME

WASHINGTON C. H., O., March 5.—With the conviction of Mal S. Daugherty as a result of the crash of the Ohio State Bank here, Special Prosecutor Louis J. Schneider of Cincinnati, won his second verdict of the same nature within four months. Both cases were of statewide interest.

Schneider was called into the Daugherty case as a result of his success in obtaining a conviction of Frank J. Doerger and Clarence Doerger last November for conspiracy in connection with the $2,000,000 crash of the Cosmopolitan Bank at Cincinnati.

As assistant prosecutor of Hamilton County, Schneider did most of the work involved in presenting the state's case against the Doergers.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Territory traversed by the Trenton-Stroudsburg branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad was combed by state and railroad police today following a night of panic on the line during which three attempts were made to derail passenger trains.

Bandits were believed responsible for the attempts. The first occurred when an express train, loaded with passengers, was derailed between Stockton and Lambertville, N. J. The train teetered crazily on the tracks but did not leave the rails. The engine and baggage cars were damaged. Dynamite sticks apparently had been attached to the tracks. They exploded as the heavy wheels passed over the rails.

Two hours later, a large stone was found lying across the tracks a half mile from the scene of the

SEABOARD SWEEP BY DESTRUCTIVE WIND AND POUNDING TIDE

Streets Flooded, Houses Damaged On Atlantic Coast Line

NEW YORK, March 5.—Atlantic seaboard towns and resorts from New Jersey to Maine today marked a trail of destruction reaped by heavy wind and sea storms. Enormous damage was done.

The most serious havoc in the New York district was at East Hampton, Long Island, where a pounding sea tore at the beach. Six homes, including that of Ring Lardner, the author, were damaged.

A high tide at New York harbor caused delayed ferryboat service and six persons were injured when one ferry crashed against guide plates in Brooklyn.

Ocean liners were delayed in reaching the harbor and several boats were damaged, but not until today. The Italian liner Alabama reported herself drifting 400 miles off Chesapeake Bay with a broken steering gear. The vessel radioed it was in no immediate danger.

Along the New Jersey coast, streets were flooded in Atlantic City, Margate and other resorts and piers were damaged.

The highest tide in twenty-two years brought extensive damage along the New England coast line. Ferry service in Boston harbor was suspended when approaches were flooded with water. Streets in Winthrop, Mass., were under water and property at White Island, and Hampton Beach, N. H., and resorts near Boston were damaged.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Territory traversed by the Trenton-Stroudsburg branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad was combed by state and railroad police today following a night of panic on the line during which three attempts were made to derail passenger trains.

of seaside communities as property damage mounted into estimate over $1,500,000.

At Revere, where 300 persons were unable to reach their homes or found them impossible to occupy because of the high water, fifty children and adults were sheltered during the night in the Bradshaw Public School.

The giant combers tied up rail, automobile and motor coach service at various points along the coast line, from Portland, Me., south to Cape Cod and beyond it, clogged the shore boulevards with debris and ruined sea walls in many places.

Shipping escaped the gale-driven tides, having found shelter in various ports. Eighty passengers aboard the New York steamship Robert E. Lee were marooned all day yesterday and all last night at Wings Neck, Cape Cod Canal. The steamship remained in the shelter until the weather cleared.

Here is how the storm hit the worst:

Plymouth—Historic rock was under water for the first time in many years and streets in the lower section of the town were awash.

Nantasket Beach—Schooner Nancy was lifted from her bed on the sand and tossed 110 yards inland against power lines of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

Kennebunk Beach, Me.—Sea wall cracked, cottages undermined by waves.

Lynn—School house basements flooded and children taken out in ambulances. Electric light plant flooded and out of commission an hour. Many automobiles and trolley car thoroughfares along the sea inundated for hours.

Provincetown—The undermined cottage of Eugene O'Neill carried away. Peaked Hill Bars coast-guard station undermined.

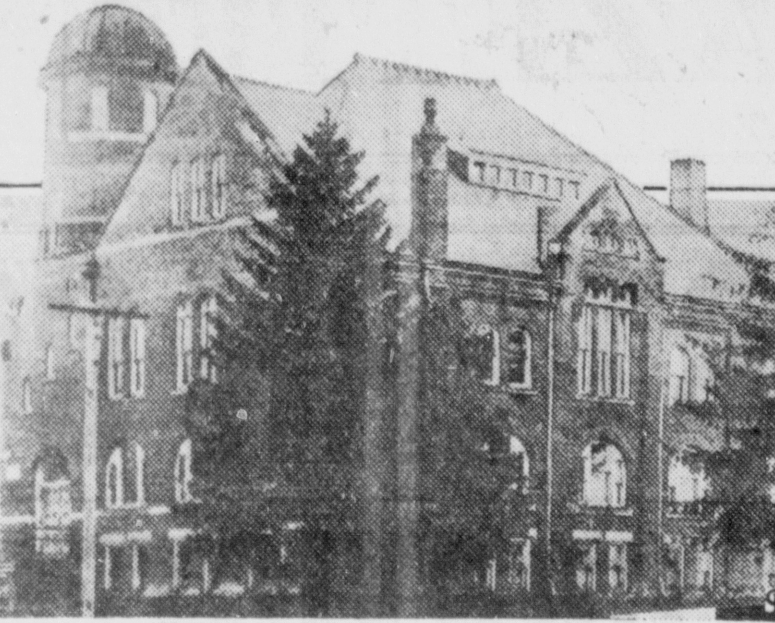

Chatham—Beach knolls levelled at the point. Two coast guard watch houses carried away.

Nantucket Island—Wind reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour damaging exposed property.

Salisbury Beach, N. H.—Ball room damaged, bath house destroyed and five hundred feet of sidewalk ripped up.

Winthrop—Emergency kitchens served food to those unable to reach their homes. Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn Railway out of commission. Two hundred yards of new sea wall destroyed.

LUCKIES are always

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ: Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.—Philippians, III, 20, 21.

DRAWING THE LINE

As we talk and read of those who need financial and other assistance during the days when conditions over which the worker has no control have taken away his regular occupation and made it compulsory that, for the sake of his loved ones he must accept that which his pride rebels against—charity—we also hear of the unworthy one who benefits to an great extent as the deserving.

Why be surprised at this? From the beginning of time, history tells us there have always been those who were willing to take advantage of conditions and live without effort. The world has ever been cursed with the loafer, the shirker and the cheat. To these the misfortunes of others are the grounds for encouraging their own selfish purposes and the unfortunate part of it is, the more disrupted the rest of the world becomes the easier it is for this class to "put it over."

Realizing this, it is little wonder then that as some agency undertakes to provide for the needs of say ninety percent of the deserving, there should be ten percent of the undeserving who benefit to equal extent.

But there is a still more unfortunate fact, in that as certain groups conscientiously endeavor to play the good samaritan to those who are worthy, it seems to be the delight, in fact the positive aim of a certain element to discover and emphasize only the few unworthy cases that creep into the picture.

For instance, assuming there are several hundred families receiving aid. Suppose ten percent of these are undeserving. Is that any reason or excuse for neglecting the other ninety percent? Shall they suffer because of the cheating of the smaller group?

In other words it's an old, old story that, along many lines, a few who are so constructed that they are willing to cheat, to misrepresent, to impose, can and generally do attract more attention than those who, through force of circumstances are compelled to forget self and pride and accept that which they would not seek if they could but pursue their daily occupations.

Let us remember this as we contribute to those who need. Remember that no matter who has charge of the distribution there will be a certain few who will clamor for that to which they are not entitled, but let us not permit this pitiful few prevent us from putting our shoulder to the wheel and sharing of our prosperity with that greater majority, those who are deserving of our consideration, our sympathy and our assistance.

DIED TOO SOON

Anthony Hope died too soon. The author of "The Prisoner of Zenda" could have done literary justice to the adventures of Zog the Albanian, as well as to those of Carol and his titian-haired enchantress. We know no other pen that could.

Carl risked his throne for the Lupescu. Zog has just exposed himself to two attempts at assassination in order to remain near the person of a Viennese actress, whom the dispatches describe as exceptionally beautiful. The circumstances under which these attempts were made, as well as the reason for his being where he was when they were made, conformed to the best royal traditions. They prove that there are still kings in the world who have other interests in life than ornamenting a throne.

While not every actress is worth risking stopping twenty bullets, we have seen some that were; and when a king falls for such a one he falls from a great height and falls hard. Ought it to be otherwise? The harder a man falls the longer he is likely to stay where he lands. Zog and Carol seem fixed for life, assassins and revolutions excepted.

THOUGHTS ON FLYING

I've just read a magazine article by a young woman who learned to fly and who thinks it's grand!

It probably is. Flyers like it. Once a man's a flyer, he's always a flyer, in his heart. Flyers get a faraway look in their eyes. Flyers find something up there among the clouds that we never find down here. And this young woman is happy when she's up there, too. The hours she spends alone in the heavens, in her airplane, are sweeter than any she has ever known. Flying makes her feel happy, gives her a sense of joyous remoteness, of power, independence. Flying sets her free!

DOES IT SET A WOMAN FREE?

I understand that. Who wouldn't understand it? . . . And if this young woman had stopped at that, her article would have been perfect. But of course she didn't. She wasn't satisfied with her own "quest of the air" in a little man-made machine. She wants to feel that by her flying she sets all other women free. As she flies over the prairies, she looks down and sees little houses far out in nowhere. . . . a hundred miles from a railroad station. She sees big barns and little homes, a man plowing a field, children playing around a schoolhouse, and in the backyard of one of those little farmhouses, she sees a woman with a baby. The woman is bending over a washtub, her back bowed, her head down, her arms buried in hot water and dirty clothes.

And as the Flying Lady goes overhead, with a wave of the hand and a roar of her engine, the Farm Woman pauses for a moment in her toil and wipes her hands on her apron and looks up. . . . and looks and looks and looks until the Flying Lady is just a bird speck on the horizon.

ISN'T IT JUST A GOOD TIME?

The woman in the air thinks: "That woman down there is saying to herself that I have set her free. I am doing what she, or her daughters, will be doing some day. She washes, I fly, but I'm flying for her and for all other women."

All nonsense! The Woman Who Washes is thinking nothing of the sort. She is saying to herself: "Some people have it easy! God, if you care about me at all, get me an electric washer some day."

The Lady in the air is having a good time, but she isn't satisfied with just that—she wants to Feel Noble. She does a Little Fuzzy Thinking, and is happy. She is kidding herself, as we all kid ourselves at times, and she is running high thinking into the ground.

It may be wrong, but I don't think I am. . . . What do YOU think? Does HER idea of a good time set anybody free? Does yours?

Philosopher

Who was the Hindu philosopher who was burned alive at his own request?

Calanus, a Hindu philosopher, whose real name, according to Plutarch, was Spines, was burned alive at his own request at Persepolis, having become seriously ill. He had spent some time at the camp of Alexander the Great at the invitation of the conqueror.

Government

In speaking of government, what is meant by Caesarism?
Caesarism is a term applied to that form of absolute rule in which the functions of government are exercised by a single person in whom they have, presumably, been vested by the will of the people. Such a despotism was that of Julius Caesar, resting on a basis of popularity purchased by the free distribution of bread and gratuitous admittance to the gladiatorial shows.

ORIGINALITY
NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—Talking about "stealing good gags," recalls a paragraph from Jack Donahue's book, "Letters of a Hooper to His Ma."

"Just to show you what kind of rats there are in this business," the Hooper says in one letter, "I'm sending you a write-up from South Framingham. Get that where the writer says, 'Jack Donahue might have got more laughs if his jokes hadn't been told by Jack Nelson last week.' After all the trouble I had putting my monologue together some guy steals my material, and they give him the credit. All the dough I wasted looking in magazines for original stuff."

EXCLUSIVE "BLIND PIG"

A certain Manhattan matron is much worried about her seventeen-year-old dotter, Helen who attends a business course at night school between nine and ten o'clock. The young Helen didn't get home till long past midnight and Ma investigated.

Helen, it appears, had been stopping at a speakeasy on her way back to the paternal roof. "A speakeasy!" cried Ma, aghast. "Oh, it's all right," said Helen. "Nobody goes there but nice people—even know, policemen and judges, and all the other girls!"

OYSTERS DEBUNKED

The Duchess hasn't been herself since she learned that oyster growers and dealers are bending every energy to shatter the myth about oysters not being good in months in which there is no R.

"For years," says the Duchess, "I've been eating oysters during May, June, July and August, just because I felt I wasn't supposed to eat them during those months. Now, if they're going to lift the ban, kick over the taboo—well, I'll retaliate by quitting oysters altogether and swinging to clams. It's time something was done to stop the incoherence by science into our private lives!"

ANOTHER SHORT SESSION GOES INTO ADJOURNMENT

"WHO'S THAT?" ASKED BY TOURISTS OBSERVING COURAGEOUS LAWMAKER

WASHINGTON. — Tourists who come to Washington and go away again without having seen Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts "ain't seen nothing," as the jim-jams sufferer said of everyone except former victims of the same distemper.

Those who, having been here and returned home, are uncertain whether or not they have seen him, have not.

No one who, not knowing the eleven Massachusetts representative already ever meets him without asking the nearest bystander immediately as to his identity, and the bystander generally can furnish the desired information, for Congressman Tinkham is about as familiar, by sight, to Washingtonians as the monument or the Lincoln memorial. Capitol guides say he arouses more curiosity among visitors, the instant they glimpse him, than Speaker Longworth, Vice President Curtis, Senators Borah and Heflin and Minority Leader John N. Garner put together.

Representative Tinkham is an exceptionally able, independent lawmaker, of rare courage and strength of character.

The average visitor, however, is indifferent to these details.

The Bostonian's striking appearance is what catches the tourist eye.

It is true enough that a full beard is unusual these times. To be sure, the late Representative Charles M. Stedman of North Carolina, who died only a few weeks ago, had one, but Representative Stedman's was snow white and closely trimmed. Besides, he was nearly 90, obviously a lingering survival from a bygone generation. Representative Tinkham is in lusty middle life. His whiskers' intense blackness is only emphasized by just a thread of gray here and there, and he evidently wears them because he feels like it; not merely because he grew accustomed to them in the 1860's, as Representative Stedman did.

Oh, my! but Representative Tinkham's whiskers are black! They are so black that they are a kind of blue-black. And they bristle. He recently had the extreme lower end of his beard snipped off slightly, but not sufficiently to detract in the least from their hirsute effect, and the result of the snipping simply was to accentuate their bristliness. That is, it made them stick out more than ever. They grow clear up to the representative's eyes — and gee-whillikins! they are vivid.

The New Englander is about 5 feet 4 inches tall, extremely erect, and, at a guess, he measures some 6 feet around his waistband.

The top of his head is as bald as a doorknob.

He has a very high color, a bel-back all the sassy, cold and unfeeling remarks I've ever made about her. In attire, she, herself, is simple and unobtrusive as the cover of a hymn book. She's got a good brain back of those sparkling eyes. A business woman with a sense of humor and a God-given slant on Peacock Psychology.

UNIMPORTANT IF TRUE

ligerant aspect, and it is no wonder that tourists exclaim, "Who in heck IS that?" the minute they sight him.

Folk often speak of Congressman Tinkham as suggesting the Hebraic, but the fact is that he is of the purest Anglo-Saxon strain. His ancestors came over in the Mayflower—pilgrim fathers and sons and sons' sons, every one of them, even unto the present generation.

It is altogether inaccurate, anyway, to say that Representative Tinkham himself looks Hebraic.

He looks like an ancient Babylonian or Assyrian or maybe a Sumerian.

There are pictures on prehistoric bits of pottery, dug up from the ruins of Ur, in the Smithsonian Institution's collection of antiquities, that resemble him.

The representative is very rich, among other things. He also is an old bachelor. Likewise he is a mighty big game hunter; between sessions of congress he amuses himself in Central Africa, shooting lions and elephants. A picturesque personality!

Finally, he is an ultra-wet.

Probably his wetness is what gave him his anti-Bishop James Cannon, Jr., complex. He has that phobia, at any rate. He made the original charge against the bishop of violating the political corrupt practices act, in connection with his fight to beat Al Smith two years ago.

Whenever the bishop appears as a witness before a congressional committee, as he did before Senator Caraway's lobby investigating committee last summer, and much more recently before Senator Nye's slush fund committee, there is Representative Tinkham on hand, to see that no stone is left unturned to trace the last cent spent by the "beat Smith" campaigners in Virginia in 1928—though the Bostonian is a Republican.

Today's Recipes

Carrot Ring—Two cups carrot pulp, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon white pepper, one teaspoon minced onion, three eggs, one package soft cheese, one cup milk, three tablespoons melted butter. Cook carrots until very soft and rub through a coarse sieve or put through the fine knife of the food chopper. Mix with the seasonings, the beaten egg yolks, the cheese forced through a coarse sieve and the milk. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour the mixture into a well greased ring mold. Set mold in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until firm, about 35 or 40 minutes.

Suggestions

Re-conditioning Waffle Iron If neglect or some mishap with the batter has rendered the waffle iron unfit for use, it is not difficult, as a rule, to put it back into good working condition. Remove with a knife any encrusted batter that may cling to the surface, then go over the inside and the outside with a cloth which has been wrung out of a thick lather of soapuds. Take care to avoid contact with all electrical attachments.

Next, cover the plates with paraffin and let the iron heat for a few moments. When it cools remove the paraffin and pour on the batter for the waffles. As the first one will be soaked with paraffin, it must be discarded. The subsequent waffles should be crisp and appetizing.

Dishwashing Hint

The graters, strainers, apple corers, cabbage cutters, frying baskets, egg whips, potato ricers and dozens—all kitchen aids with sharp teeth or rough surfaces—are too likely to receive a "lick and a promise" when dishwashing is done, instead of the thorough cleaning they require.

Letting hot water from the faucet run over them is not enough. Rough surfaced implements should be soaked in a pan of soapy water immediately after they are used, to prevent food from drying on them. When dishwashing time comes, they should be scrubbed with a stiff bristled, soapy brush and rinsed off with boiling water. If left in the nooks and crannies, minute particles of food are likely to decompose.

"I can't see what either of us do is any of your business, stranger," said Daddy Longlegs. "However, since you insist upon interfering, ask your questions, for all of me."

Diet Tests May Be Used At Home

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Suppose a person who has frequent attacks of hives or attacks of asthma decides that these attacks are due to sensitization to some sort of food he eats. He does not know what food it is and wants to find out for certain. How does he go about it?

The doctors who specialize in this kind of work usually do it by skin tests. It was found that in people who are sensitive to foods the skin will give an inflammatory reaction if the offending substance is scratched into the skin. These skin tests are, however, long drawn out and necessarily expensive. They are also, as has lately been suggested, not always reliable (in an article by Feinberg—"Uses and Limitations of Skin Tests in Allergy," Journal American Medical Association, November, 1930). With these disadvantages in mind it is possible for the patient to test himself with the so-called elimination diets of Rowe.

These diets are based on the principle that certain foods frequently cause the allergic symptoms and others seldom do. The latter are selected to be used in the diet. The patient stays on the diet for some time. If no asthma or hives appear during that period it may be assumed that they were caused by foods not in the diet. Other foods are then cautiously added to the diet. When the offending food is added the symptoms should appear. The villain is then unmasked, and can forever be avoided.

Let us see how one of these diets works in practice. Several of them were given in the article yesterday. We will choose Diet No. 2.

Cereal: Corn, tapioca; bread: corn pone; meat or fish: bacon, chicken; vegetables: squash, asparagus, peas, artichokes; fruits and jams and fruit drinks: pineapple, apricot, prunes; miscellaneous: sugar, olive or corn oil, salt, corn syrup.

It will be noticed that all classes of food are represented—cereals, bread, vegetables, meats and fish, fruits and condiments. So a reasonable variety is possible.

One important warning is necessary. The patient must get enough to eat. Sugar never gives allergic symptoms and olive corn oil seldom does. So here we have a carbohydrate and a fat—both good energy producers and both should be eaten in sufficient amounts to prevent weakness or loss of weight.

The olive oil should be substituted for butter in cooking the foods.

Well, for breakfast you can have sliced apricots or pineapple; corn meal mush; a crisp slice of bacon. For lunch: chicken, peas, corn pone, artichoke salad with French dressing (using corn oil) and apricot preserves. For supper: chicken broth, chicken and bacon, hominy grits, asparagus, fruit salad of apricots, pineapple and artichoke, and prunes for dessert with sugar.

Corn pone is made with corn meal, salt water and vegetable fat. If after a few days' trial of this nothing happens, diet No. 1 can be added in toto. This gives a larger variety. Rice and rice bread can be used alternately with corn and corn bread. Lamb for another meat, lettuce, spinach and carrots for other vegetables, and lemons, pears and peaches for other fruits.

Then with diet No. 3 added there is enough variety to suit nearly any taste. The articles missed must be wheat bread, eggs, milk and dairy products and tea and coffee. If, however, after a trial of some weeks there are no symptoms, these should be added to the diet one by one. They are the most frequently offending substances, and if a person is sensitive to any one, the familiar symptoms will return as soon as it is added to the diet.

To Be Kind Is World's Great Need

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"There is no better age to live in than the one in which we are living today, so let's be kind to one another."

This is a quotation from the letter of a young man which I have just been reading. It is just the text I needed for starting the column today, so thank you very much, Loyce J.

Lovers' quarrels, family quarrels, misunderstandings between friends, cause so much heartache. Why can't we all just be kind to one another and prevent them?

"Dear Virginia Lee: Please give me some advice as to how I can get along with my mother and sisters. Whenever I try to please them I can't. There is continual fussing all the time."

"Should I leave home? I am 16 Please answer as soon as possible"

"P. S. I go with fellows and mother always fusses about them to me, yet she says she wants me to go with them. What am I to do to prevent this?"

Your problem is not serious, as problems go, Troubled. And yet much of the unhappiness of our world comes from just such petty quarreling. We continually find fault with those near and dear to us, and instead of enjoying one another's society, we spend the time we are with them in silly fussing, as you say. If we could only think that Death might step in suddenly and take our loved one from us, as it did recently to a sweet young friend of mine, how good we would be to him or her.

We want our children to have friends, but we continually criticize those friends and make our young people sensitive about asking them to come to our homes.

After awhile, Troubled, when you have been away from home for some time, you will forget all this "fussing." You'll remember only that you were happy at home with your mother and sisters. Console yourself with this thought. Your mother is anxious to have you choose good friends, thus she is critical of those you bring home. "People living together get on one another's nerves. What appears to be fault finding often is merely nervous reaction. Don't take it too seriously. Be affectionate and laugh your own peevishness away and thus relieve the tension of the atmosphere at home as much as possible. And don't leave home. Circumstances will force you to do that soon enough."

Margie: Why not cultivate another girl friend, Margie, until this girl you think so much of is ready to come back to you? If you devote yourself to other girls you will not see all the things that distress you. And to accomplish this best friend act indifferent, so don't think I am unsympathetic, but showing your jealousy is not going to help you. So snap out of it and see if you cannot overcome it, and let both girls see that you are an independent soul.

Happy Blue Eyes: It is all right to be engaged at your age if you wait awhile before marrying. Yes, a wrist watch is a nice engagement present place of a ring, and perfectly proper.

Be Careful Choosing Wave Fluid

By GLADYS GLAD

It is a truism that we moderns aren't so terribly far removed from the savages in our instincts and frequently, in our habits. When I read of primitive peoples, I often get a great kick out of the similarity of some of our modern self-adornments to theirs.

In Africa, for instance, there is a tribe of tall, thin individuals whose male members plaster their heads thickly with mud in order to increase their charms in the eyes of the opposite sex, and in order to keep their hair in place. You may snort derisively at the thought of such a practice. Yet some of the heavy wave-setting fluids that we self-styled "highly civilized" mortals use today aren't so far removed from the Dinkas' mud plasters. In fact, the mud may even be the more hygienic of the two. Sunlight is the greatest germ-destroyer there is, and that sun-baked mud may be free of germs than the residue-forming fluids that some of our beauty shops employ.

It is an exceedingly harmful practice to continually coat the hair and scalp with a heavy, residue-forming waving fluid. Such a preparation clogs the minute pores, and causes faulty gland and duct activity in the scalp. As a result, the hair becomes dry and lusterless.

The damsel who has had her hair shampooed each week, and her wave set with an extremely heavy lotion immediately after the washing, has no right to set up a howl when her tresses lose their glossy appearance. For hair that is coated week after week with a "wavy" preparation cannot be expected to retain the gloss and sheen of health. The scalp must be free to breathe, to function normally if the hair is to appear at its loveliest.

You may rest assured that if your hair has lost its gloss as a result of hairdressing and waving, it will not regain its sheen unless the scalp is stirred to enough activity to feed the hair the proper quantity of natural oil that it craves. And to accomplish this absolute cleanliness of the scalp and hair, and frequent brushings and massages are essential.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Freckles: Lemon juice or dilute peroxide are excellent freckle bleaches. Allow either bleach to dry on the skin and then apply a bit of cream to counteract any drying effects. Freckles are becoming on some women. I would suggest that you use a soft peach shade of powder.

Red Nose: A red nose and hands usually result from poor circulation. Take deep-breathing exercises when you rise in the morning. Get plenty of exercise and fresh air. Also, eliminate foods that stimulate the blood supply from your daily menu.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlet on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

FRAMED
by Phil

It is high time, (said he, seriously) the Ohio High School Athletic Association makes a state-wide canvass of the sentiment of its member schools, and then hands down a definite ruling in favor of or against the question of "seeding" the draw in basketball tournaments annually conducted under its auspices.

Unless this is done, an annual controversy over the plan will materialize every year.

The board governing the sectional and regional tournaments in the Southwestern Ohio district unanimously decided not to make a recommendation one way or the other for the 1931 classic, leaving the entire matter completely in the hands of the coaches of the competing schools.

The question is not put where it belongs. The coaches are bound to be prejudiced one way or the other every season. Whether they are for or against the system depends upon the strength of their own teams from year to year and the attitude they take in the matter is, as is only natural, a purely selfish one. They are only trying to look out for the best interests of their teams.

The sixteen schools which will compete in the sectional tournament at Dayton this week-end were queried on the seeding plan by the district board in questionnaires mailed out prior to the Christmas holidays. The idea of the board was to make a canvass of the prevailing sentiment before the coaches could have a chance to compare the strength of their teams with that of other schools in order to gain a more accurate description of their true feelings with relation to the plan. Ten schools voted against it and only six for it.

When the question arose for reconsideration at Dayton Monday night, eleven schools voted against the plan and only four in favor of it. Had Urbana been represented the vote would have been 12 to 4, indicating that two coaches who, under ordinary circumstances like the system, changed their minds on the assumption their teams were too weak this season to be included among those seeded.

There are probably as many disadvantages to the plan as there are advantages, but it begins to look like the state association should take a definite stand on the question, if only to eliminate the annual wrangling.

It was refreshing to hear Dayton Stivers, which has won the state title eight times, the last three years consecutive, vote against the seeding system. Personally, however, the reason why Stivers did not again favor the system this year escapes us. The Orange Crushers, even though they have met defeat frequently during the season, is still rated on nearly a par with the other teams in this section, and would without a doubt have been included among the seeded teams had the plan been adopted. The Stivers coach evidently was none too optimistic over his team's chances of being seeded.

The number seven, universally conceded to be lucky, did not prove so for Granville Robinson, coach of Sidney High. When the tournament drawings were held, Robinson drew fourth the number seven from the hat and proudly displayed it, only to discover that his team must meet Dayton Steele, probably the strongest team in this section, in the very first round. The Sidney mentor was not downcast, however, declaring his boys have long expressed a desire to play Steele, despite their scant chances of winning.

George Wertz, Piqua coach, upon discovering that his team must face Springfield in the opening round, did not even take the trouble to arrange a practice session for his players on the coliseum floor this week, not thinking it worth while Springfield massacred the Indians in a regular season game.

JUNIOR HIGH PLAYS NEW MADISON TEAM AT ARCANUM FRIDAY

The Xenia Central Junior High School basketball team is one of eleven junior high teams in the Miami Valley that will participate in the Miami Valley invitational tournament at the Butler Twp. School at Arcanum Friday of this week and Saturday of next.

The Central juniors will meet the New Madison team at 7:45 Friday night in their opening contest of the tournament. If victorious Friday the Central lads will return again next week on Saturday morning for the semi-finals and finals of the tourney. The Patterson-coached five took part in the tourney last year, but was defeated in the opening round by the ultimate winners of the tourney.

New Madison possesses one of the outstanding teams in the tournament this year and promises to give the local lads a hard battle. Their main attack, however, is centered around one player and if Pat's boys can stop him they are considered to have a fair chance of winning the meet. Monroe of Darke County and Union City are considered the two other strong teams entered.

In the opening round Arcanum will meet Monroe of Darke, Randolph will meet Jackson, McCartyville will tangle with Union City, New Madison will engage the Central lads and Gratiot will meet Ansonia, while Monroe of Preble will remain idle having drawn a bye for the first round.

Coach Patterson has been giving his boys light workouts this week after a full week of vacation from the court. Central basketballers have been defeated but three times this season and will go into the tournament strong favorites. Ten players, including Batson, Glenn, Latimer, McCartney, Huston, Yeakley, Weingart, Malavazos, Moore, and Shidaker will make the trip with Coach Patterson. Richard Adair will also accompany the squad in capacity of manager.

CEDARVILLE BEATS URBANA U. 44-39

After several weeks of enforced idleness, Cedarville College basketballers returned to the hardwood Wednesday night and defeated the Urbana University quintet, 44 to 39 in an exciting overtime game after a basket by Garwood in the last ten seconds of play enabled the Borstmen to tie the score.

Five times during the course of the contest the score was tied and at the end of the regulation playing period the count stood at 38 to 38. In the extra session, McLaughlin and Turner, stars for the Borstmen, took matters into their own hands and scored six points while Urbana failed to add to its previous total.

Turner, Cedarville forward, was high scorer for the Yellowjackets with fifteen points, while McCreary tallied a like number of markers for Urbana.

The game was the last on Urbana's schedule this season. Urbana registered only one victory in basketball during the campaign, defeating Antioch College in the first tilt on its schedule.

SOFTBALL LEADERS WILL MEET MONDAY

Plans for the 1931 softball season in Xenia will be formally launched when the Xenia Playground Association holds its annual organizational meeting at 7:30 o'clock next Monday night at The George Dodds and Sons Granite Co., W. Main St.

The softball commission, which has jurisdiction over the summer sport here last year, is urging that all prospective teams be represented by their managers at this meeting.

Walker Gibney is president. Paul Turnbull is vice president and E. E. Boxwell is secretary.

The three officers compose the softball commission.

Election of officers for the coming year will also be a feature of the session.

CENTRAL BUCCA NEERS PREPARE FOR SECTIONAL TOURNAMENT

Xenia Central High basketballers, under the watchful eye of Coach "Pinky" Wilson, have been grinding themselves this week in preparation for their competition in the Southwestern Ohio sectional state tournament to be staged at the Dayton fairgrounds coliseum Friday and Saturday this week.

The Buccaneers drew Urbana High as their opponent in the first round of play and will meet the Champaign County entry at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. A victory over Urbana would enable Xenia to meet the winner of the Troy-Greenville game in the second round at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night.

Theoretically favored by the draw, the Bucs are believed to stand a better than even chance of reaching the quarter-final round of play of this district at Dayton the following week-end.

Urbana High wound up its current season by losing to London, 22 to 15. London had been defeated earlier in the season but three regulars were lost to the Urbana squad by mid-year graduation.

Members of the Buccaneer court squad went to Dayton Thursday afternoon to indulge in an hour of practice to accustom themselves to the coliseum floor on which the tourney games will be played. Xenia was allotted the floor between 2 and 3 o'clock.

Harry Schwab, Dayton and E. J. Sebald, Middletown, along with a popular Lima official, Hauenstein, will officiate the tourney play at Dayton, it is reported.

SCHOOL BOARD FIGHT REVIVED; SUIT FILED TO UNSEAT MEMBER

Charging the appointment of Samuel Andrew as a member of the board of education of Xenia Twp. School District last January 8 was made illegally, Mrs. E. M. Anderson, wife of Horace Anderson, a member of the same board, has brought suit in Common Pleas Court seeking to enjoin Andrew from serving in the capacity of a board member.

Mrs. Anderson sets forth she is bringing the action as a taxpayer of Xenia Twp., and in behalf of all other taxpayers who may wish to join her in the suit.

Andrew is named as the principal defendant with Frank Wolf, as president of the board, and R. E. Bryson, clerk and treasurer of the body, named co-defendants.

The plaintiff declares that on December 11, 1930 there was a duly qualified school board in the township composed of Frank Wolf, Horace Anderson, Ray Murray, Andrew F. Shumaker and Edna Bull, with R. E. Bryson acting as clerk-treasurer, and that on this date, at a regular board meeting, Edna Bull submitted her resignation.

DeWitt Clinton Arment, 84, Civil War veteran, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lester Bowers, 248 S. West St., Thursday morning. Although he had been in failing health a number of years he suffered a fracture of his left hip which was the direct cause of his death. Mr. Arment had been blind fifteen years.

Mr. Arment was born October 20, 1846 and had resided in this city since 1882. During the Civil War he served in Company H, 39th O. V. I. He was employed for a number of years as a machinist at the Xenia Shoe Manufacturing Co. Following the death of his wife thirty-three years ago he had made his home with Mrs. Bowers. He was a member of the United Brethren Church, this city.

Besides Mrs. Bowers he is survived by the following children: W. E. and A. E. Arment and Mrs. George Weddle, this city; E. L. Arment, Greencastle, Ind.; Mrs. Clark Dill, Bakersfield, Calif., and H. C. Arment, Columbus. Fourteen grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren also survive.

Private funeral services will be held at the Bowers home Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial will be made in Woodland cemetery. Friends may call at the Bowers home Friday from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m.

Reduction in fair premiums decided. An average reduction of 10 per cent in premiums for virtually all departments of the 1931 Greene County fair was authorized by fair board officials at their annual all-day meeting in the Court House assembly room Wednesday.

The yearly fair catalogue was revised for the coming year with no marked changes being made, and the contract for printing the book was again awarded to James McMillan, publisher of the Tri-County Herald, Osborn weekly, who submitted the only bid.

FIRST BONUS LOAN CHECKS RECEIVED IN GREENE COUNTY

First checks to be received locally, issued by the government in payment of the loans on adjusted compensation certificates of World War veterans, were delivered to several Greene County ex-service men through the mail Wednesday, according to Paul Fuller, service officer of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion.

These checks were based on applications filed by ninety Greene County veterans last week in anticipation of enactment of the new veterans' loan bill into law over the President's veto.

A vast majority of the checks being received in this county are being cleared through the Veterans' Bureau at Cincinnati and Mr. Fuller, who spent Wednesday in that city conferring with officials of the bureau, said all of the original ninety local veterans who were among the first in the entire country to apply for loans, will have received their checks by Friday this week.

More than 150 veterans in this county have now made application for loans totaling in excess of $130,000, but the local rush for loan blanks is now slackening considerably, it is said.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 5.—Strength and activity of the utility stocks and a further slight decline in a number of important rails were the main features of a dull and irregular stock market this morning. The mercantile stocks dropped off under the effect of a shrinkage in retail trade, but on the whole the market appeared to be in a waiting mood, with the professionals jockeying for position in the favorites.

WOMEN ARE ACCUSED AFTER CAR FIGURES IN COLLISION HERE

After the antiquated coupe in which they were riding crashed into and damaged two parked autos and then overturned in front of the Greene County District Library, E. Church St. late Wednesday afternoon, Katherine Jones, 31, and Dorothy Portis, 26, both colored of Springfield, were arrested by police on liquor charges.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Thursday morning on charges of operating an auto while intoxicated and transporting liquor, Katherine Jones, the driver, pleaded not guilty, while her companion entered a similar plea to a charge of possessing liquor. Their joint hearing was assigned for Thursday afternoon.

Their coupe, police learned, smashed into two parked cars before overturning on its side. A coupe belonging to Miss Mildred Sandoe, librarian, was damaged to the extent the left rear fender was torn loose from the running board and a hub cap smashed. A coach owned by Homer Snively, Yellow Springs, sustained dents and scratches and a smashed left rear fender. The front end of the machine occupied by the two colored women was caved in.

The liquor charges filed against the women resulted from the discovery of a gallon can of whiskey alleged to have been concealed by Dorothy Portis in the undergrowth behind the library before officers arrived on the scene. Snow which covered the ground betrayed the hiding place of the contraband as it enabled police to trace the woman's footprints to the cache.

MANY ATTENDING ACHIEVEMENT DAY

Between 300 and 400 women from all parts of Greene County were in attendance Thursday at the Achievement Day program for women's extension work in the county held at the Armory. The day's program opened at 10 a. m. with group singing followed by reports on various phases of the extension work in the county given by several Greene County women.

Miss Wanda Przyuska, health specialist, Ohio State University, Columbus, gave a demonstration on "Artificial Respiration" during the morning. Reports on "Home Care of the Sick," the project studied by Greene County women this year, were given by township leaders. Luncheon was served at 12 o'clock and the afternoon session opened at 1 p. m.

The main feature of the afternoon was the dramatization of "The Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe," under the direction of Mrs. Harry Smith. During the afternoon women were to decide upon the project to be studied by Greene County women the coming year.

ARRESTED HERE

Coleman Cooper, arrested by Xenia police Wednesday was turned over to Urbana authorities for prosecution on a non-support charge in that city. Cooper formerly lived in Urbana but has been employed in this city for some time, police say.

More than 150 veterans in this county have now made application for loans totaling in excess of $130,000, but the local rush for loan blanks is now slackening considerably, it is said.

WILL TEACH SCOUTS METHOD OF SELLING TICKETS FOR CIRCUS

Not only do Boy Scouts feel they are capable of staging a spectacular performance on the occasion of the second annual Boy Scout Circus Friday, March 13 at the field house of Wittenberg College, but they feel that they are able to be self supporting in the way of selling tickets for the big circus.

The business enterprise will be undertaken by troop members in Xenia and Greene County.

Adults, scout leaders and officials of Tecumseh Council have outlined a program by which it is hoped to give each Greene County Scout a part in the ticket sale and a thorough course in the elements of salesmanship so that they will have a better understanding of the business details of the project.

Several Scout officials will meet Scouts at Central High School, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the purpose of teaching and organizing the sale program.

To provide interest in the event as well as teaching the Scouts self reliance and business principles, officials of the council are arranging a group of awards to be given the Scouts selling the largest number of tickets on Monday and Tuesday.

While the tickets will not go on sale before Monday the Scouts will be given the opportunity to get reservations for tickets in advance so that the energetic Scout will have a list of prospects already made out when he is given the word to start the sale.

Similar sale demonstrations are being held in Springfield, Wilmington and Urbana.

The committee in charge of the ticket sale is asking the support of the schools of the city and churches through their Sunday School superintendents and other agencies of the city to cooperate in the promotion of the ticket sale meeting March 9.

FOUR-MOTOR, TWO-BODY CAR BUILT FOR RECORD TRY

This odd-shaped automobile is being built by E. J. Pennypacker of Hollywood, Cal., in an attempt to produce a motor car capable of breaking Sir Malcolm Campbell's new world record of better than 245 miles an hour. The car is to have four motors—one within each wheel—and two pointed bodies to overcome wind resistance. The record attempt is to be made at Pismo Beach, Cal., by H. A. Patterson, former motorcycle racer, one-time aide of the late Sir Harry Segrave.

children. Two sisters, Mrs. C. A. Burhans and Mrs. Cora M. Kizer, of Cincinnati, also survive.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Wiltsee Funeral Chapel, 24 W. Ninth St., Cincinnati, with burial in Spring Grove cemetery there.

VILLAGE DEVELOPS

BRIDGEWATER, Conn., March 5.—This hill village in the heart of the Litchfield hills is developing culturally under the influence of a quarter of a million dollars left by the late Captain William D. Burnham, who years ago went out into the world after a boyhood in the village. The little red school house has been razed and in its place is a colonial structure of ultra-modern equipment and adjoining is the Burnham library.

COSTLY YEAR FOR CAPITAL DEBUTS

Fortunes Spent On Coming Out Parties Of Washington Girls Where Even A "Light Tea" Costs $5,000

Helen Lee Eames Doherty

By RILLA ENGLE SCHROEDER

Central Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON, March 5.—Pity the poor papas who paid the bills for the fifty-two Washington debutantes this year!

It was daughter who danced in her expensive Paris frock, but it was dad who paid the dressmaker, florist, caterer and the score or more expenses incidental to a small debut. Conservative estimates of the aggregate cost of the teas, receptions and balls which launched Washington's fifty-two young "buds" place the total at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Social secretaries, in whose hands such events are placed, declare that in spite of the business depression the season's round of entertaining for the debutantes was the costliest on record for the capital. The debut on which only a mere thousand or two was expended was regarded as most inexpensive. "A very nice little party," as the buds themselves might describe it.

Debut Party Small Item

The debut party itself is only one of the items that the parents of a prospective debutante must take into consideration. Daughter, once launched, is included in a hundred or so lists. She is besieged by a storm of invitations, each particular party demanding a new frock and frequently an entire new costume.

Entertained, she must in turn entertain, and she must help launch her sister buds. Woo to the poor little bud who is consistently omitted from the list of those assisting at the other smart debuts! And it would be out of the question to wear the same frock twice. Small fortunes have been spent on the coming-out gown and the debut wardrobe.

The sum spent in Washington this season flowers alone would keep several families in comfort for a year. The flowers used in decorating the ballroom of the Carlton hotel for the debut tea of Katrina McCormick, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, were valued at $5,000 for instance.

Congress Invited
Thirty-five hundred guests were invited to the McCormick debut. The mother of the bud, Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois, included on her invitation list virtually the entire membership of the United States senate and house of representatives.

It was a democratic throng that crowded the Carlton ballroom to greet Miss Katrina and congratulate her mother on her charming young daughter. Officialdom rubbed elbows with diplomats, residential society and the hundreds of personal and political friends of the "gentlewoman from Illinois."

Katrina who had grown overnight from a small girl whose greatest interest lay in her horses to a willowy young creature with almost as keen a flair for politics as her mother, is said to have been more "mother's party" than her own. Later Mrs. McCormick gave a ball for the younger crowd at the famous Gaff mansion in Washington, her own house in historic old Georgetown being too small.

For Merely "Light Tea"
The debut tea was said to have cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. And at that only a "light tea" was served as refreshments. Had a seated supper been served, another $5,000 or $6,000 would have been added.

Heralded as the "million dollar" ball, the debut of Helen Lee Eames Doherty, adopted daughter of Henry L. Doherty, multi-millionaire public utilities magnate, led all the other coming out parties of

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blotches. Your liver aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and out." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't take liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Request a substitute.

wood, rare as orchids, at Christmas time, when the party was held with the Yuletide decorations. Expensive trifles, such as silver cigarette cases and enameled vanity bags, were distributed as souvenirs. More than a thousand guests, headed by Vice-President Curtis and his sister-hostess, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, attended.

The Doherty ball, according to the authorities, ranks in costliness with the party given last season by Claudius Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee at that time, to introduce his youngest daughter, Mildred. A group of entertainers were imported from New York and the guests, some 1,500, dined in a room transformed for the evening into a tropical paradise.

A Conflicting Debut

Helen Doherty made her debut the same evening that Eugene Meyer, Jr., head of the Federal Reserve board, and Mrs. Meyer, had selected to give a dance for their statuesque young daughter, Elizabeth. Always original, Mrs. Meyer engaged a well known and expensive mural painter of New York, whose canvases are noted for their beauty, to convert for the evening her magnificent Washington residence into a magical southern isle.

Huge paintings, where sparkling blue waters were reflected in sunny cloud-flecked skies, were placed outside the windows of the ballroom, whose walls themselves were banked with exotic tropical plants. The sleet and snow of the stormy December night were completely forgotten as the young guests among them Allan Hoover, son of the President and Mrs. Hoover, danced under the light of a mellow southern moon.

Elizabeth had been formally presented to society at a tea at her parents' residence a few days before Christmas. To the particular debutante a tea must always be followed by a ball.

Less lavish but ranked as one of the important debutante functions of the year was the tea dance at which Adele Townsend Jahneke, the pretty blonde young daughter of the assistant secretary of the navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahneke made her bow.

The Jahnekes are an old New Orleans family of wealth and position, and are known for their generous hospitality. They maintain a town house throughout the year in New Orleans and a summer home in Biloxi, Miss., where their friends from the south and Washington often go for week-end parties. In Washington they have an apartment at the Mayflower.

Belle of New Orleans

Adele was queen of the Mardi Gras in her home city last year and not so many years ago her mother, then one of the belles of New Orleans, was accorded the same honor.

Helen Doherty, Elizabeth Meyer and Adele Jahneke are listed among the half dozen Washington debutantes of this year who are known as great heiresses. Katrina McCormick will one day share with her small sister, Ruth, and brother, Medill, the combined Hanna and McCormick millions.

Martian Hope, who has been presented this year in both New York and Washington, is a daughter of the fabulously wealthy Walter Ewing Hope.

Dorothy Fels, who is making a tritely debut, is the daughter of Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, wife of the under-secretary of the treasury and on the paternal side, of the millionaire Fels of Philadelphia. She already has been presented in New York and Philadelphia, and before the end of the season, now almost over for the buds, will make her bow in Washington.

The social secretaries in Washington estimate that the average cost of the debut parties in Washington this year has been in the neighborhood of $4,000 or $5,000. To the parents to whom this sum was out of the question it was a choice of letting daughter "sneak out" in society or presenting her at a luncheon or small home party. The first alternative insures the youngster a reasonably good time, but automatically omits her from many of the more elaborate parties. A luncheon for fifty or sixty young people—the buds and their mothers only are invited to these affairs—can be given at $5 a plate. A bouquet for each of the guests adds another $2 or $3 to the bill, but the total prevents dad an attack of apoplexy and a bad bank deficit.

More Conservative
The home debut still is regarded by conservative capital mothers as the proper setting for a debutante's coming out party.

In the case of Sally Fairfax Harrison, daughter of the Fairfax Harrison of Virginia, and a descendant of Lord Fairfax, it was necessary for the family, who make their home at the Plains, Virginia, to lease an entire house in Washington for the winter. A not inpensive item when the total cost of the party was calculated.

But to the Harrisons it would have been an unheard of thing for a daughter of their house to make her bow elsewhere than under her family's roof.

The company is permitted to begin business with a capital of $1,000.

STEAL OWN MONEY

SALINAS, Cal., Mar. 5.—Two bandits were forced to steal their own money.

They drove up to Mario Rossi's service station and were frollicsome about spending money for soda water and gas for their car. When they prepared to leave one of them placed a gun under the nose of Rossi and the other scooped up the contents of the cash register. All that they found was the $2 they had just spent.

SPEND TO BUILD

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 5.—Building, industrial and municipal projects in San Francisco in 1931 will total $258,329,000. Included in the expenditures will be the Golden Gate bridge which will span San Francisco Bay, the construction of a new and modern Olympic Club building, and a number of private industrial projects.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Carolina Woman Lost 47 Lbs.

In 3 Months and Feels Younger

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds, was all ways bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

"Now I am glad to say I am a well woman, feel much stronger, years younger and my weight is 170 pounds. I do not only feel better but I look better, so all my friends say.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it." Mrs. S. A. Solomon, New Bern, N. C., Jan. 1929.

"I am exaggerating by writing such a long letter but truly I feel so indebted to you for putting out such wonderful salts that I cannot say enough.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at druggists the world over. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

Attention to diet will help—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat. Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back. adv.

BEAVERCREEK SCHOOL BOARD IS RESTRAINED FROM BUYING SITE

Suit to enjoin the board of education of Beaver Creek Twp. Rural School District from constructing the new centralized high school building on the Haines farm site, midway between the present high school and Zimmerman, was filed in Common Pleas Court Wednesday by Erith R. Shoup on behalf of herself and 673 other residents of the township.

A temporary restraining order was granted by Probate Judge S. C. Wright in the absence of Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy, who is presiding on the bench in Cleveland.

The petition sets forth the township school board, desiring to erect a new school building, originally appointed a committee consisting of two representatives of each sub-district to select a suitable site.

It is claimed this committee, after considering three locations, decided upon a site on the Lincoln Coy property at Zimmerman as being the most advantageous. This site, the plaintiffs argue, is the most centrally located as to population because it is situated at the intersection of two roads, the Dayton-Xenia Pike and the Fairfield-Waynesville Road. It is further pointed out that 55 percent or more of the population of the school district reside nearer to it than either of the other two sites and that it is of easy access for pupils.

Asserting they signed petitions directed to the township board, recommending selection of the Zimmerman site, the plaintiffs declare they represent more than two-thirds of the electors who voted at the November election when a $180,000 bond issue to finance construction of the new school was approved.

Contrary to the wishes of a majority of the residents, and disregarding the selection made by a delegated committee, the township board recently passed a resolution authorizing acquisition of the Haines site for the building, thereby abusing its discretion in the matter, the petitioners charge.

The argument is also advanced that if the school is built on the Haines farm, taxpayers of the district will be compelled to sustain additional expense in bus transportation of pupils to the site.

Attorneys F. L. Johnson and Marcus Shoup represent the petitioners.

RALLS MURDER CASE IS NEARING JURY

BUENOS, O., March 5.—The case of Walter Ralls, Crestline Negro, charged with the murder of Sheriff George Davenport recently, was expected to be heard from in the state's case as the trial was resumed this morning. They were physicians who attended the sheriff at the time of his death.

Defense attorneys have indicated they will submit no witnesses in behalf of the accused Negro. Unless they spring a surprise, it was believed the defense attorneys would rest on the state's closing statement.

Sheriff Davenport was slain as he attempted to seize Ralls, his brother, Elijah Ralls, and a nephew, Blanton Ralls, in connection with chicken thefts.

SCIENCE LICENSE BILL IS DOOMED

COLUMBUS, O., March 5.—Apparently unmoved by new Christian Science pleadings for recognition of the constitutional grant of religious freedom, members of the state senate health committee indicated today that they will kill the Weber bill which permits the charging of a fee for the treatment of human ailments by prayer.

Despite the plea of Frank M. Stevens, Elyria attorney that "it isn't right for this cloud of lawlessness to hang over a law-abiding people," it was apparent that the measure is doomed. The present law denies Christian Science practitioners the right to ask a fee for prayers.

Miami, Fla.—"I used to think of Pluto Water only as a prompt relief for constipation," writes P. S. Cramm, "until I had a talk with my doctor about it. He recommended Pluto Water to me as a year-round preventive of constipation. MAD LAUGHTER

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION—COPYRIGHT, 1930 A THRILLING MYSTERY STORY + by MILES BURTON

CHAPTER 34 Dick soon learned the routine of the house. Dr. Weatherleigh was an early riser, and was in the habit of going round the estate and giving orders before breakfast.

That meal disposed of, he disappeared into his study, a most comfortable room, surrounded by glass-fronted shelves full of priceless antiques, until the dressing gong rang, only emerging for lunch and tea.

By then, he declared, his day's work was finished. After dinner he would drink a few glasses of vintage port, and then, for preference, adjourn to the billiard room, where both he and Allison proved themselves remarkably expert with a cue.

On the third day of Dick's stay at Leatridge Hall, Dr. Weatherleigh came down to dinner with a worried expression on his face, and was unusually silent during the meal.

Alison said nothing until he had consumed his second glass of port. Then, when her father's expression had begun to re-assume its accustomed serenity, she asked her question.

"What's the matter, Father? Out with it. Has one of your treasures turned out to be a forgery? One might expect anything after that Glogel affair."

Dr. Weatherleigh's features relaxed into a smile. "Nothing so serious as that, my dear," he replied. "Nothing at all, in fact, except that I am foolish enough to be annoyed by trifles. William came to see me this evening and told me that he thought I ought to know that a policeman has been hanging about the place for the last couple of days. William asked him for his reasons this afternoon and the man merely said that those were his orders. I am very much afraid that there must be a suspicious character in the neighborhood. I am always nervous about what Allison calls my treasures. Some of them are certainly valuable, but hardly so, one would imagine, to the ordinary thief."

Alison laughed. "Oh, if that's all, father dear, I don't think you need worry. After all, it's no great inconvenience to have a policeman about the place. But how fortunate that I managed to get engaged to Dick! Otherwise you'd be thinking that the policeman had replaced the postman in my youthful affections. I'm going into the billiard room to practice a few shots. Don't be too long, you two."

As soon as she had left the room, Dick turned to his host. "Look here, Doctor," he said. "I feel most apologetic about this policeman. I'm afraid that I am the cause of his hanging about the place."

Dr. Weatherleigh looked at him in amazement. "You, Dick? Is anything wrong?"

"No, there's nothing wrong," replied Dick with a smile. "But I'm afraid that, in the eyes of the law, I'm a suspicious person."

"Really, Dick," said Dr. Weatherleigh in amazement. "But in what way can such a situation have come about?"

"I'll tell you the whole story if you wish," said Dick after a pause;

"but it's all such a muddle that, if you don't mind, I'd almost rather wait until daylight. Perhaps I've taken too much upon myself—I seem to have made a mess all round—"

He was silent. Dr. Weatherleigh said nothing. In sudden panic, Dick shot out: "I say, you don't think I am hiding anything—disgraceful, do you? I mean, I'm asking you to trust me, I know, and—"

Dr. Weatherleigh came up to him and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Dick," he said, "I may seem an old man wrapped up in his hobby, but I assure you I am seldom wrong in my judgment of a man. You don't have to tell me anything. Whatever happens, however odd a position you find yourself in, never be afraid that I shall doubt you. And I am sure Allison won't either."

"Thank you," said Dick, deeply moved. "Well, if you like it in tabloid form, I am suspected by one Inspector Pollard of the C. I. D. of pinching the Maharajah's rubies from that fellow Ibbotson—"

"You've seen the burglary in the papers?" Dr. Weatherleigh nodded. "I know you won't let what I say go any further than this room."

Dick went on, and gave a rough outline of what had happened from the time of his visit to the Maharajah's study to his last interview with the Assistant Commissioner.

"Well," said Dr. Weatherleigh at the end of the recital, "all I can say is that you have certainly been living in a world of alarms and it's a good thing you're well out of trouble down here. Please stay as long as you feel inclined, but remember, too, that we shall both of us understand if you feel the need to get back into the danger zone. We shall ask no questions, but simply pray that you may come through safe and sound."

Alison came impatiently into the room.

"I thought you were never coming," she complained, "and

The Theater

You can't believe your own ears in the talkies. A trip through the sound department of a Hollywood studio reveals a weird assortment of gadgets to imitate various kinds of noises.

One of the strangest is a wooden box with a key protruding from the side. When you turn the key, there comes forth the perfect replica of canaries singing. Pounding of hoofs is duplicated by rubber plungers working on a board.

A can with a rosin string produces a dog's bark. Hinged sticks are slapped together to create the sound of footsteps, and other sticks imitate a slap in the face. If you turn the crank of a large and Hattie," an hilarious farce excellently cast with such stars as Leon Errol, Zasu Pitts, Milti Green, Lilyan Tashman and Jackie Searl.

Although "Poverty Row" in Hollywood has gone, one of its most picturesque traditions remains. It is the "Water Hole" or Cowboy's Retreat, located within fifty yards of Hollywood Blvd., where one may still find groups of screen cowboys wearing their Stetsons and high-heeled boots. They loiter on the steps of inexpensive rooming houses or in the two saddle shops nearby. There are several restaurants patronized almost exclusively by this bizarre group.

The second feminine lead in "Rebound" will be played by Myrna Loy, for whom an exotic reputation is being built up. Charles R. Rogers has just borrowed her from Fox, where she is under contract. Ina Claire and Robert Ames will play the leads and E. H. Griffith, who made "Holiday," will direct. Hedda Hopper is also in the cast.

Twenty Years '11- Ago '31

Dr. R. H. Grube went to Cincinnati to attend the first meeting of the new state board of health, to which he was recently appointed.

Dr. B. R. McClellan returned home from the convention of the American Medical Association at Chicago.

Like Jim Jeffries, they couldn't come back. Reference is made to the Xenia "all-star" basketball team, composed of ex-high players, which was wallowed by the Pastime A. C. team of Dayton, 42 to 17.

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Taabuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

- (1) Cheap tobaccos.
- (2) Particles of peppery dust left in the tobacco because of inefficient cleaning methods.
- (3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidur and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

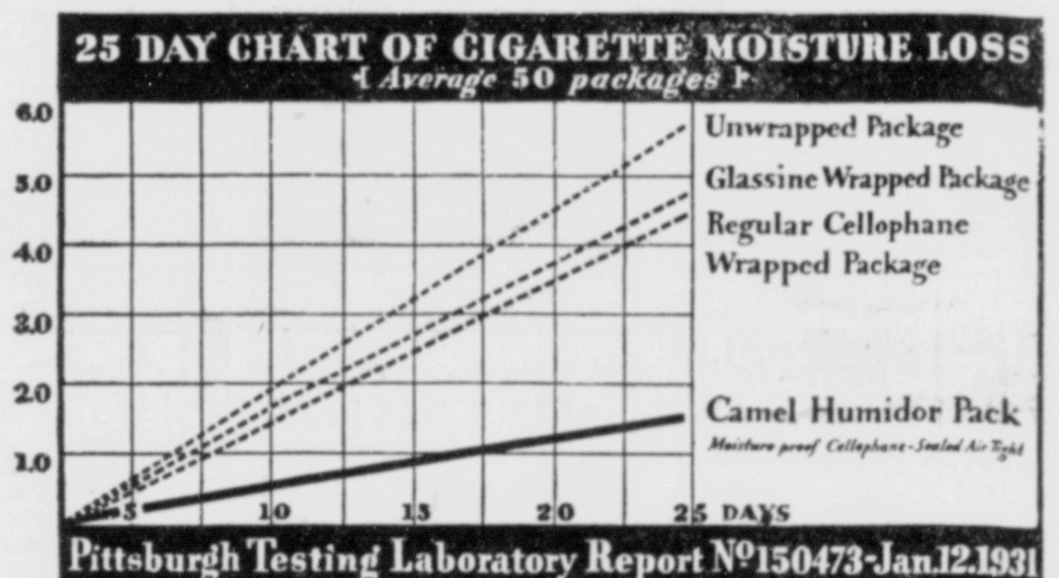

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us.

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

- (A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.
- (B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.
- (C) Only a waterproof material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection. (D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.

Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

For some time now every Camel that has left our factory has gone out in this new Humidor Pack.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

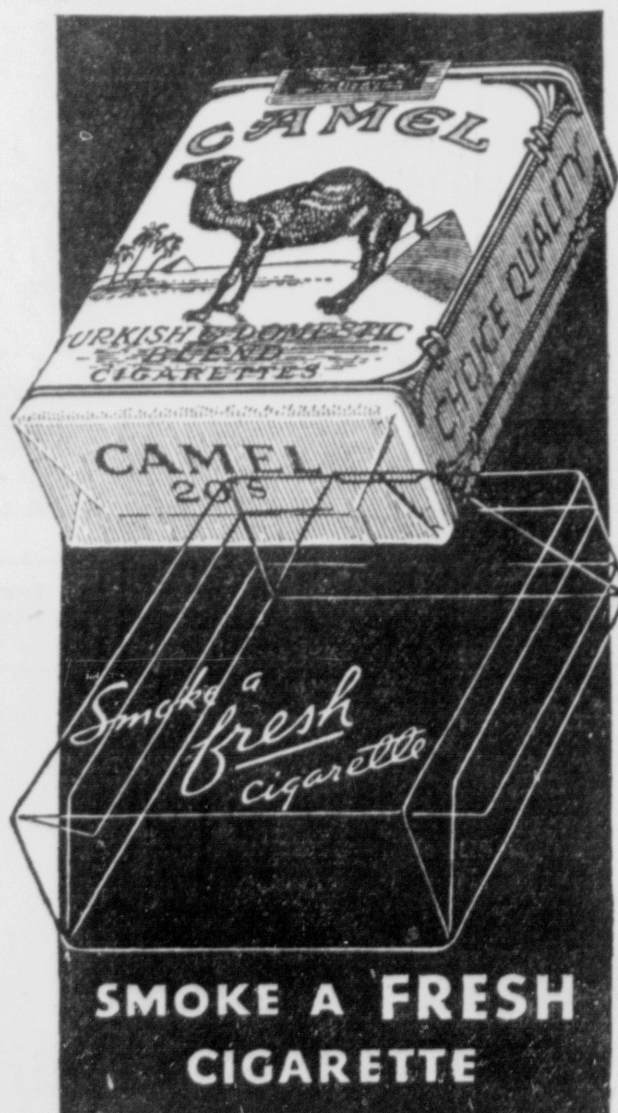

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced.

We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

Just treat yourself to Camels in the new Humidor Pack and see if you don't agree.
